

HONORABLE PEOPLE IN GOVERNMENT?

The answer to the question is no, I don't expect to win. I don't believe I can win, my family as it were, was destroyed. There is no winning. I can only hope to receive my benefits. Unlike some, money isn't everything to me. In fact, I am attempting to grasp and apply the information in the federal appeals process, in the event that I have to file an appeal to the Second Circuit. I don't focus on what can be, I meditate more on my pain. When you are trained in competition, you don't hope for the best, it distracts you. The way to proceed against an opponent is to focus on the task at hand so to speak.

In this matter, the rules tend not to apply to my opponent, the public officials, they are not only the competitor, but the referees as well. I think I opined this in an earlier writing. When I say rules, unlike sport, I mean the law. For example, if Treyvon Martin had shot a Jewish teenager, there would be no bail. Had the gunman in Aurora been Black, there would be no issue of 'insanity'. In both cases, as Black people killing White people in this country, they would have been on their way to death row. The Martin situation would probably have already been at trial with a conviction.

Similarly, as I am a Black man obviously discriminated against, and defrauded of my benefits and rights, look at the 19 years. There is no more Justice than there ever was for the retributions required from slavery in this country. Study the history of the holocaust. I hope you view the Cozzolino documents. Unfortunately, White people getting away with destroying Black people is the Status Quo. I think we can agree on that.

Homosexual rights have overcome the rights of Black people, just look at the benefits accorded them by White people and compare what I had to endure. I was born Black, they choose to be homosexual. I defended the rights of the citizens of this state by putting my life in harms way and lost my health. They only have to claim to be in partnership with another person of the same sex. What justice is that? Not to mention they are the same people that determined that my life, and health don't count in comparison to their free will. Please re-read the SEBAC agreements. I was actually performing my official duties as an officer of the state. They choose to not perform their official duties as public officials. They are actually violating the law. They are White people looking out for White people.

So, there is, as you can see, no winning. The rules of the "game" are not the same and have never been the same for Black as opposed to White people. You do remember slavery? You do understand the references made to equality in the united states constitution and its' amendments, don't you? If you add the laws passed by the State of Connecticut in 1848, you would perfectly understand that there is no 'rule of law' when applied to Black people. The law only applies to Black people, as they are being sent to prison. Equity is a matter of civility, and White people have never viewed Black people as civil, rather as animals. Therefore, Justice does not apply to Black people in this society.

As a Black man, attending White private University, and understanding the values of the public officials that oppose my equality, I have learned apart from University that their actions are in fact criminal. Their beliefs should disqualify them from ever holding public office. This entire system of government is doomed for failure. It is just a matter of time. It wasn't established correctly, through slavery that is. It still subversively holds to those slave principles of inequality and injustice. I can give account of that from being a victim of their actions and inactions, and as one being a student of government. Their education fails them, they apply personal hate to governance. You do wrong, you repent, ask forgiveness, correct your errors, move on, it is then the land is healed. I hope this helps.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR QUESTIONS. I HOPE THIS HELPS. DON'T BE BITTER LIKE THEM
